MOST IMPORTANT CAPTURE.

Treaty Port and the Key to Pekin—Some Doubt in Diplomatic Circles, but Confirmed by the Latest Dispatch.

London, Oct. 9.—The Times will pub- sh to-morrow a dispatch from its cor- espondent in Yokohama confirming the port of the Japanese having taken Chee oo. The correspondent adds that a Jap- nese force has also landed at Tarasca- , near Port Arthur.

DOUBTED AT WASHINGTON.

fficial Despatches Have Not Been Received There.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Verification of e reported capture of Chee Foo by the panese has not reached the Japanese gation in Washington, a singular cir- mstance, if the report be true in view the present unobstructed condition of e telegraph lines from the Orient.

The rumor of the capture created some rprise in diplomatic circles here, and as not generally given credence because hee Foo is a treaty port and damage the interests of foreign residents by e Japanese attack might and probably ould, cause complications with Eng- nd, France, Germany and other coun- es, which Japan at this time would do r best to avoid.

Then, again, the situation of Chee Foo, out 50 English miles only from the eat Chinese arsenal of Wei Hai Wei, d practically the key to Pekin, ren- red its capture so important that it emed incomprehensible it could have en accomplished and without official in- rmation being sent to the legation here d also without confirmation being re- ived from other sources.

The general tendency in diplomatic cir- s is to doubt the correctness of the spatch. The state department has re- ved nothing to confirm it.

Not Confirmed at Berlin.

London, Oct. 9.—The Berlin correspond- t of the Daily Telegraph says that re- rts of the capture of Chee Foo were re- ved in official circles in Berlin to-day, t were not confirmed.

A dispatch to the Times from Hong ong says that the Chinese are pre- ring for a siege of Canton, and that panic prevails in that city.

A Shanghai dispatch to the Times re- ring to the report of the capture of ee Foo says: "Two Japanese war- ps closely reconnoitered Chee Foo har- - and the neighboring coast, and then parted."

Referring to the conduct of the panese troops in Korea, the Chemulpo patch says that while on the march n the private soldiers pay the Koreans everything obtained from them. The ly expense is said to be 300,000 yen.

English Soldiers for China.

London, Oct. 9.—It is reported that reinforcements of marines for the British squadron in the Chinese waters, will go to their destination by way of the Canadian Pacific railway, as that is considered the quickest route.

AN ARMY IN BOSTON.

Successful Test of the Massachusetts State Militia.

Boston, Oct. 9.—The entire militia of the State, 6000 strong, was mobilized in this city to-day, with very satisfactory results. The main object of the day was the bringing of a disciplined force to the relief of Boston, the performance of work in military fashion and the retirement of the forces as rapidly as they came. Every condition was made as much as possible like that of actual emergency.

Incidentally there were signal corps and muster drills, ambulance and Red Cross work and a practical illustration of harbor defense by the explosion of 50 torpedoes in the Charles river. The maneuvers and a big procession was witnessed by thousands of people and the exhibition was of the highest order and reflects great credit upon the officers and men.

A HURRICANE.

Considerable Damage to Property at Pensacola.

Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 9.—The tropical hurricane that has been central in the Gulf for several days, struck this city Sunday night. The wind blew from the northeast and was accompanied by rain. The hurricane increased in fury as morning approached, and all day yesterday it raged with terrible fury. Falling signs and roofs made it dangerous to pedestrians on the streets and business was practically suspended. The average velocity of the wind from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. Monday was 84 miles. Between 2 and 3 p. m. it blew steadily at the rate of 68 miles an hour, and several times between 11 a. m. and 4 p. m. it reached a velocity of 85 miles. At 2 p. m. October 8, the barometer fell to 29.28, the lowest ever recorded at this station, being .19 lower than during the great storm of last October.

The center of the hurricane was not a great distance southeast of this city, but every telegraph wire leading from the city went down before 11 a. m. Monday and nothing could be heard from other points. Owing to the wind blowing off shore and the warning given by the weather bureau, the damage to shipping was small.

The tide rose over the quarantine station and damaged the crib. The tide was so high that it broke over Santa Rosa Island, and the life saving crew were in water up to their waists. One house was blown down at the station, the wharf, was swept away and the supply sloop was swamped and sunk. The track of the dummy line from Big Bayou to the navy yard is twisted out of shape, and in some places buried two feet under sand. The city is much damaged. Fences, trees and small outhouses were blown down in every part of the city. A part of the roof was torn off the Opera House. The entire roof was torn off the large Blount & Wattson building on Pacific street, and all the stores and offices in it were flooded with water. A part of the roof of Creary & McClintock's machineshops was blown into the bay. The Union Baptist church (colored) was blown down and completely wrecked. Several plate glass fronts were smashed by falling signs and awning poles. So far as learned no one was injured.

The storm ceased at midnight last night, and the weather was bright and much cooler to-day.

KENTUCKY FUTURITY.

The Great 3-year Old Trot Won by Beuzetta

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 9.—Eight thousand people, 3000 of whom were ladies, braved raw wind here to-day to witness the deciding of the great Kentucky Futurity for 3-year-olds. The stake was worth more than any trotting event heretofore offered, the first horse netting $22,430; the second $3,000 and the third $1,000 and the nominator of the winners dam $1,000. Axinite, by Axtell, (Doble); Lyric, by Lancelot, (Bither); Nellie A., by Wilkes Boy, (Bowerman); Beuzetta, by Onward, (Macey); Futurity by Hinders Wilkes, (Evans); Alkoran, by Robert McGregor (Thayer); Celaya by Allandorf, (Wevn); and Norvadine by Norval, (Davis) were the starters. With Beuzetta the favorite out it would have been a great race, but she outclassed her field so greatly that she never had the least trouble in winning the rich stake. Drawing last position for the start, and not being used to scoring behind other horses, caused her to act badly and they had scored down over a dozen times when the word was finally given. Although she got much the worst of the start, she soon began to overtake the leaders and just after passing the quarter pole she was only a length back. Before another furlong had been covered, she was leading and trotting as level and as perfectly as a piece of machinery. She came on home the easiest sort of a winner by several lengths. In the second and third heats, she led from start to finish, winning each time as far as she pleased.

Celaya was second in the first heat which gave her third money, but Axinite and Futurity had a strong fight for the second place. Futurity was too speedy for the Axtell colt and the son of Hinder Wilkes landed the $3,000 as second money. P. W. Ayers of Ducker's station, owner of Beuzetta, received in addition to the stake, the money which went to the nominator of the winner's dam.

To-morrow Alix 2:03 3-4, trots to lower her record.

John R. Gentry will attempt to beat Robert J.'s time. The first two heats of the Futurity race were made in 2:16 1-4 and the third was trotted in 2:14 1-2.

Prompt Payment.

Washington, Oct. 9.—The Department of State has received from the Chilean government the full amount of the awards made to America by the recent Chilean Claims commission aggregating more than $250,000.

The commission adjourned July 9th and the Chileans have exhibited remarkable promptness in settling claims.

A DYING CZAR.

A Physician's Plain Words to Russia's Autocrat.

TOLD THAT THERE IS NO HOPE.

Another Doctor Thinks Otherwise—The Czarowitz and Grand Duke Michael Will Begin to Act as Regents at Once.

London, Oct. 9.—The Standard's correspondent in St. Petersburg sends the following story, the facts of which he says he learned through an ear witness:

When Dr. Zachrin told the Czar that his malady was incurable that care and attention might prolong his life for a few months, but that it was useless to conceal the fact, that no remedies would avail beyond a certain period—the Czar was terribly affected. He entered another room and exclaimed to the occupants, "Dr. Zachrin has just told me that there is no hope." Everybody was thrown into consternation by the Czar's change of face and action, and greatly blamed Dr. Zachrin for speaking so bluntly.

The correspondent vouches for the correctness of this story. He adds: "The Czarowitz will very shortly return here accompanied by Grand Duke Michael. The two will preside over the council of state and act jointly. They will be regents in everything except in name. Army reports have already been submitted to the Czarowitz, who will probably assume the chief command almost immediately. His marriage appears to be somewhat remote, partly owing to the tradition that no Czar may marry within a year of his coronation.

"It is reported that Professor Leyden is less hopeless concerning the Czar than is Dr. Zachrin. He consideres that the disease must have existed two years, and he is astonished that it was not detected at an earlier stage when treatment is more likely to be efficient."

The Berlin correspondent of The Daily News say that Professor Leyden will start for Livadia in accordance with previous arrangements.

Dispatches received in Berlin from Copenhagen and St. Petersburg concerning the Czar's condition have all favorable tone. The Czar is said to have transacted part of the State business yesterday.

New York, Oct. 9.—To-day was the first day for registration in this city. The total registration to-day was 102,906. In 1891, the last gubernatorial election year, the total registration on the first registration day was 70,147. In 1892, 92,601 voters registered, and in 1893, 68,994.

Brooklyn, Oct. 9.—To-day was the first day of registration in Brooklyn, and the voters turned out in full force. On the first day in 1893, 62,363 names were enrolled on the books, and to-day 75,760 names were enrolled.

STEVENS FLOPS.

A Man Who Talks Like a News Editorial.

Denver, Oct. 9.—Isaac N. Stevens, formerly chairman of the Republican State central committee, and the attorney who prosecuted and convicted Dr. Graves, has finally gone over to the Populist party and announced his reasons for so doing to-night to a tremendous audience at the Coliseum. The crowd was so large in fact that Lafe Pence candidly asked them to stay away from the next meeting and give those now outside a chance.

Mr. Stevens quoted largely from Senator Jones' letter of August last, entitled: "Monetary Reform, the Dominant Issue of the Age," and from Senator Teller's speeches in the United States Senate. The closing paragraphs of Mr. Stevens' speech sum up his reasons for deserting the old party and outline his future course.

CHASING AN EMBLEM.

An Amusing Contest in the First Congressional District.

Denver, Oct. 9.—Now that the Hon. Lafayette Pence, the would-be Populist-Democratic nominee for Congress from the First Congregational district, aided by Secretary of State McClees, has captured the Democratic rooster, there is a likelihood that John T. Bottom, the Democratic candidate, will use the Populist emblem, the cottage home. Mr. Bottom and his host of friends in the Democratic party are determined to fight the affair to a finish and demonstrate Mr Bottom's right to remain in the field as the legal Democratic nominee, even if the case has to be taken before the courts for a decision, which genuine Democrats are confident will be in Mr. Bottom's favor. They do not propose to be bulldozed by the Patterson-Pence combination and although they have received nothing but partial treatment at the hands of Secretary McClees and his Populist conferrees, they claim unless the secretary goes back entirely on his original decision, they will yet get recognition. Of course, Mr. McClees may turn both the rooster and cottage home emblems over to Pence, but in that case the matter will be taken to a higher court than the Secretary of State's office for settlement.

It is evident that Mr. Pence and Mr. Patterson have been caught napping by the White Wings people for this morning they sprung a real surprise on them. Last night the committee designated by the 170 Democrats who nominated Mr. Bottom independently, by petition, met and selected as the emblem of the independent nomination the cottage home and filed a certificate to the effect with the Secretary of State this morning.

Unfortunately for Mr. Pence's friends they either forgot or did not think it necessary to file a certificate adopting the cottage home as an emblem, and the White Wing Democrats supporting Mr. Bottom, claim that their candidate is alone entitled to the cottage home emblem, and all the combined powers of McClees, Patterson and Pence cannot make it otherwise.

At the time Messrs. Currigan and Patterson filed protests against the certificate of nomination of Mr. Bottom, there had been on file in the Secretary of State's office for 30 days a petition nominating Mr. Bottom as an independent candidate, with the rooster as an emblem. The secretary has decided that Mr. Pence must have the rooster, but as no emblem was certified to when his nomination papers were filed, Mr. Bottom and his friends say their right to the cottage home is unquestioned. If this statement is supported Mr. Pence's original nomination will keep him off the Populist ticket. There will be no nominee on the Populist ticket for Congressman from this district and Mr. Bottom will head the independent ticket, which will contain the cottage home emblem.

UNION LEAGUE BANQUET.

Compulsory Arbitration the Theme of Discussion.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—The Union League club celebrated its regular quarterly business meeting by a banquet to-night, at which 400 guests sat down. The guests of honor were Carroll D. Wright, United States labor commissioner; President Charles H. Wolcott of the Massachusetts board of arbitration and conciliation, and M J. Carroll, editor of the Eight Hour Herald, published in Chicago. These three gentlemen were invited as being qualified to discuss the question of arbitration. After an elaborate banquet the business meeting followed. The work of the civic federation in closing the local gambling houses was commended by a unanimous vote, and then Mr. Wright was introduced.

Mr. Wright said in part: "I shall limit myself to the discussion of arbitration to the disputes which arise in industrial circles. It would not be proper for me to discuss the question of arbitration as it applies to strikers on railroads. I remember a story of the master of a vineyard who paid the laborers who came in at the eleventh hour as much as those who had worked and sweated all day. The laborers who worked all day struck. They said it was not fair for the men who worked but one hour to get as much money as those who worked all day. And the master replied: 'Is it not lawful for me to do as I like with mine own?' This argument was not at that time answered But today it is being answered. A man has not the absolute right to do as he likes with his own property. I believe in the whole scheme of settling questions by arbitration and conciliation, but we might as well say voluntary compulsion as compulsory arbitration. How could a court enforce a decree which, for instance, makes laborers take less than they can live on, or makes the employer pay more than he can afford? The principle of compulsory arbitration could result in no good. It would result in state socialism or in probable revolution. It would mean the death of all industry. If the employer were compelled to pay a larger price than he could afford for labor, he would have to raise the price of goods and in that case the only remedy under compulsory arbitration would be to compel the consumer to pay this increased price for goods. So, however you look at it, compulsory arbitration means death to industry and the enslavement of the workingmen. Compulsory arbitration means going back to the conditions from which we have emerged. Social prosperity, peace and happiness would be destroyed were we to go back to these conditions."

Mr. Wright was followed by Charles H. Wolcott. Mr. Wolcott set forth methods of the Massachusetts board of arbitration. He said arbitration was no new thing, but dated back to the time of King Solomon. He strongly advocated voluntary arbitration, and declared the advisory board of Massachusetts had much power and he was a bold man who violated its decrees, because at the same time he violated public opinion. The board, he said, had settled disputes between many classes of laborers and their employers. The plan had been successful in every instance. Neither wage earners nor millionaires can afford to brave public opinion, and they do not try; a sentiment which was vigorously applauded. "This idea," he continued, "is the whole secret of our success We have yet to record a failure, because the public has always been with us. Nothing is permanently gained by refusing to discuss a labor question with a labor organization. It is doubtful if our board could get along without the co-operation of labor unions."

M. J. Carroll, a pronounced friend to labor, and editor of the Eight Hour Herald, stated labor's side of the question. He favored the enactment of a national arbitration law.

G. P. Royal of the Locomotive Engineers, then spoke. He created a sensation by scoring Debs and the A. R. U.

Angus St. Clair of New York, was the last speaker. He confined himself altogether to the discussion of railway labor.

Joint Debates.

Omaha, Oct. 9.—John W. Thurston has accepted the challenge sent him by Chairman Smythe of the State Central committee for a series of debates between himself and Congressman Bryan, candidates for the United States Senate. The debates are to be on the issues between Democratic and Republican parties and are to take place in Lincoln and Omaha, Oct. 16 and 18 respectively.

A Battle in a Saloon.

St Louis, Oct. 9.—Five masked men entered the saloon of Frank Sullivan on North Broadway, near the city limits, at 9 o'clock to-night and ordered the proprietor to throw up his hands. Sullivan reached under the counter for his shotgun and the robbers opened fire. John Murphy, a customer, was dangerously wounded in the left side and Sullivan was shot in the left wrist and left leg. He fired both barrels of his gun at the robbers, one of whom fell, wounded in the head and right leg. The rest of the robbers fled and the wounded robber was taken to the city hospital a prisoner. No plunder was secured. Fifteen shots were fired. It is thought they are the same men who held up a saloon full of men Sunday evening

A Southern Storm.

Savannah, Ga., Oct. 9.—The center of the Gulf storm passed west of Savannah this afternoon, moving northwest. No damage was done here.

At Tybee the wind reached a velocity of 70 miles an hour for a short time. All shipping was made secure and suffered no injury.

Patti Will Sing Wagner

London, Oct. 9.—Madame Patti intends to give a series of concerts in Germany, singing chiefly selections from Wagner's works, which she has hitherto avoided.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

A Carpenter's Lamp Ignites an Anthracite Coal Mine.

FIVE PERSONS ARE DEAD.

Two Thousand Men Thrown Out of Employment and a Property Loss of Several Hundred Thousand Dollars.

Shamokin, Pa., Oct. 9.—The most disastrous mine fire in the history of the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania started at the Lukes Fidler colliery last night from the naked lamp of a workman Five persons are known to be dead. They are: Irving Buffington, carpenter; Geo. Brown, miner; John Gierse, laborer; Michael Bufaski, laborer; Anthony Zobert, driver boy.

Buffington, with a number of other carpenters, was at work half way down the shaft calking up holes in the side of the brattice which connects the shaft with air passage. It is the rule, when doing this work, for the men to use lanterns, but in this case the rule was disregarded and naked lamps were substituted. Detecting a leak, Buffington placed his lamp to the draft and the flames immediately caught the boards, which were saturated with oil, and were taken into the air-chamber. Realizing the awful consequences of his act, the man at once started for the bottom of the shaft to notify the workmen there of their danger, his companions in the meantime rushing up the shaft after their safety. When Buffington had notified the workmen below, he stopped to exchange his rubber boots for a pair of shoes, and the delay in doing this cost him his life Buffington staggered to within 30 feet of the door of a passageway which led to the open air, but here he was overcome by smoke and fell. His body was found this morning. The other bodies are still in the mine.

Michael Golden, one of the inside officials, was at the bottom of the shaft when the alarm was given, and notified the men working in No. 3 slope, while John Dunmore performed a like duty for those employed in the No. 2 slope. Golden told the men of an opening by which it was possible to reach a new shaft, and leading the way for the 70 men employed in this portion of the mines, Golden made for the passage, which was safely reached, although it was nearly filled with smoke. The iron bucket used to hoist the men holds about six persons. This was quickly filled and in response to a frantic signal given by those below, the engineer began to hoist. Nearly 10 trips had been made when it was discovered that a number were missing, among them David Edmonds and Henry Evans They had succeeded in getting half way up the old shaft when the smoke forced them back. The traveling way to the east of the shaft was then tried with better results, although the smoke was very strong. When nearly half way to safety Evans, who is but a boy, gave out, and to save his young comrade from certain death, Edmonds picked him up and succeeded in reaching the open air. Two miners, whose names could not be obtained, seeing that escape through the old shaft was impossible, and that their retreat in the direction of the new one was covered with smoke, groped their way back and succeeded in reaching in safety an opening which came out on top of the mountains.

Several other men ran towards the Coal Run workings and made their escape in that direction. Among the last to escape from No. 3 slope was a Hungarian who excitedly told the men at the bottom of the new shaft waiting to be hoisted that there were three or four fellows overcome by the smoke while getting out of the working, and that they were nearly dead.

Somebody suggested that a party be formed to go back and rescue them, but it was clearly seen that this course would be suicidal, and it was abandoned. The sufferers were left to their fate.

When all who could be rescued were brought to the surface and an enumeration had been made, it was found that four workmen, in addition to Buffington were missing.

Superintendent Williams and Mine Inspector Brennan arrived on the scene while the men were being hoisted to safety, and they organized rescuing parties to go to the relief of the imprisoned men.

Before the places where the men were known to have worked could be reached however, the smoke drove the rescuers back and the attempt was given up

When the news of the disaster reached Springfield and Shamokin, men, women and children who had relatives working at the mines rushed to the scene and soon the air was filled with their lamentations.

The flames by this time were creating havoc with the workings below, and in addition to the timbers which were nearly all on fire, the beds of anthracite were beginning to ignite, and the whole mine in the vicinity of the bottom of the shaft was soon a seething furnace.

The Shamokin fire department began pouring water into the mine within an hour after the fire started, but thus far without any perceptible effect.

This morning a consultation was held by the officials and the advisability of attempting to rescue the enclosed men was discussed. It was decided the effort would be worse than useless, as it would certainly result in the death of some of the rescuing party.

The Coal Run portion of the Fidler workings is connected with the Gimlet and Hickory collieries, and in consequence they are not working

One thousand men were employed at the Luke Fidler colliery and another thousand were given employment at the Gimlet and Hickory Ridge collieries. These men will be idle for many months.

The latest plan adopted by the officials for quenching the fire is by pumping all available water into the mine, and thus drowning it out. This method, however, will take months to accomplish, and it is safe to say that this valuable coal operation is practically ruined, entailing a loss of several hundred thousand dollars.

Late to-night no news had been received regarding the fate of George Brown and the three mentioned Polish miners. It is certain that all are dead. A rumor was current this evening that two Hungarians are unaccounted for, but the officials state positively that there are only four men in the mine. The mine is still burning fiercely and will have to be flooded The loss at Luke Fidler will amount to $700,000.

OPPOSED TO HILL.

Nominations by the Independent New York Democrats.

New York, Oct. 9—Edward M. Shepard, the leader of the reform Democrats of Kings County, who bolted the regular Democratic ticket selected at Saratoga, nominated to-day, in accordance with his promise and with the help of other representative Democrats of New York State, who are dissatisfied with the party ticket, a full third State ticket as follows: For Governor Everett P. Wheeler of New York City; for lieutenant Governor, Daniel L. Lockwood of Buffalo; for judge of the Court of Appeals, Charles F. Brown of Orange County.

Promptly at 3 o'clock this afternoon the halls of the Trinity building in this city began to fill up with Democrats prominent in the opposition to the regular ticket. Mr. Shepard had given it out early in the day that in his private offices in the Trinity building, the committee of nine, representing the reform element of the Brooklyn Democracy, would confer with other Democrats from up the State and select a third ticket. It was thought until the very last that ex-Secretary Charles S. Fairchild would be nominated for the first place on the ticket, as he was the choice of the majority of the reformers, but it was apparent after the conference that had been in session some time, that Mr. Fairchild was not anxious to accept the leadership.

The doors were closed and for two hours the reformers discussed the situation. It was long after 4 o'clock before Mr. Shepard invited the members of the press into his office, and gave out the selections that had been made. Mr. Shepard said a detailed statement of the proceedings of the conference would be given out at 8:30 o'clock in the evening, together with the platform.

Mr. Shepard made the important announcement that Mr. Charles S. Fairchild would be the chairman of the campaign committee, and had agreed to serve. The committee is composed of the following named gentlemen, all of whom were at the conference:

Franklin D. Locke of Buffalo, Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn, Henry A. Richmond of Buffalo, Seymour Van Sant Voord of Troy, Michael E. O'Connor of Brooklyn, Robert A. Weiderman of Rockford County, Thomas G. Shearman of Brooklyn, John A. Beal of New York, John Brook Leavitt of New York, D. S. Ramsey of Brooklyn and A. R. James of Buffalo.

Mr. Shepard said that those named constituted only about half the committee, which will be completed later, and after he had communicated with gentlemen who were with the reformers heart and soul, and who he had no doubt would serve on the committee. Mr. Shepard was asked why Mr. Fairchild had refused the nomination at the head of the ticket. "Well," he said, "Mr. Fairchild is the leader of the State Democracy, and if he accepted the nomination it would entail upon him the necessity of giving up the leadership. But he has accepted the chairmanship of the campaign committee, and will be in this fight heart and soul."

International Typographical Union.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 9.—At to-day's session of the International Typographical Union ex-President Higgins of the local union delivered a speech on the per capita tax question. An amendment was offered that the time of the meeting be changed from the first Monday in October to the first Monday in September. The amendment was defeated. The question of changing the per capita tax according to the earnings of the men was left with the local unions to pass upon. A proposition as to how to expose those unions that were in arrears in membership dues was also argued, and it was decided to publish them in the Journal.

Shortly after noon the convention adjourned until Wednesday morning, and the delegates were driven to the school for the blind.

A Customs War.

Berlin, Oct. 9—The Freisinnige Zeitung of this city says: "We are drifting into a customs war with America If the German agrarians succeed in getting Chancellor Von Caprivi on their side, and the United States refuse to modify the sugar tariff, reprisals by Germany will mean an increase of the grain duty from 35 to 50 marks. Counter reprisals by the United State will follow, which will damage German commerce ten times more than did the Russian tariff war."

Northern Pacific Cases.

Chicago, Oct. 9—Judge Jenkins continued the hearing of argument in the Northern Pacific receivership case at his rooms in the Lexington Hotel this evening. The argument was upon the endorsement of the masters report, recommending the retention of T. F. Oakes as receiver. Judge Pettit, for the stockholders, who ask for Oakes' removal, attacked the Rocky Fork deal, and declared that the road was a heavy loser by the transaction. He went into the Chicago Terminal matter at great length, charging that the purchase of the terminals and the leasing of the Wisconsin Central line was unnecessary and ill advised.

McKINLEY'S REPLY.

HIS ANSWER TO WILSON'S OBJECTION.

Quoting From the Democratic Accounts of the Speech He Shows That He Did Not Misquote or Garble It—What Wilson Said and What Wilson Did.

West Superior, Wis., Oct. 9. Governor McKinley last evening addressed an audience that packed the Grand opera house. So many were unable to secure admission that two extra meetings were organized at other auditoriums and the Governor had something to say to each. The main meeting was signalized by the presence on the platform of Major Upham, the Republican candidate for Governor, and all of his associates on the State ticket. State Chairman Thom presided. Governor McKinley spoke at length on the tariff issue and the effect of the Brice Gorman law upon this section of the country, and then continued:

"Mr. Wilson, in an interview published in the morning papers to-day in speaking of my comments upon his utterances at the London banquet, said: 'If Major McKinley is correctly reported, he has simply garbled my speech by taking the first half of a sentence and twisting it one way and omitting the other half, showing it could not have been so used.' The comment which I made was in a speech delivered at Gallipolis, O., on Sept. 27, the day after Mr. Wilson's speech and all I knew of what he said was what seemed to be an acurate report of his speech that was sent by cable and published in a number of newspapers in this country. This is what I said: in the course of my remarks I inquired, 'What existing industries the tariff law of 1894 had created and what existing industries it stimulated? I find answers to my question in the newspaper dispatches of to-day from London furnishing particulars of the banquet given by the Chamber of Commerce of London to Mr. Wilson, member of Congress from the State of West Virginia, whose rugged hillsides I see just over the river. Sir Albert Kaye Rollit, who presided at the banquet, said that Mr. Wilson's name had become honored and familiar in England and that London in honoring him honored itself; that the new tariff law while it might not have realized the aspirations of its promoter had already benefitted England. Furnaces have been re-opened in Wales and Yorkshire and an impetus has been given to the textile industries. This will be cheering news to the people of the United States and will bring comfort to the idle men who for more than a year have been waiting for the American mills to re-open. You have not heard of any commercial body in the United States through its spokesman declaring that any industries in America have been stimulated by this law, whatever benefits have gone to other countries. While the banquet at London was proceeding, the Board of Trade at Edinburgh sent its congratulations. There was a singular absence of any American dispatches.' Here is a word of encouragement which Mr. Wilson himself gave to the gentlemen of London. He said: 'Our protectionists have been building defences to keep you and other nations from competing with us in our home markets. The tariff reformers are breaking down these defences.' That is what he objects to. If we do not defend our home markets against the products of the cheaper labor of other countries is it any wonder that the gentlemen of the Chamber of Commerce of London applauded Mr. Wilson when he uttered such a sentiment? Mr. Wilson even despairs of free government for he said: 'We are rapidly being sobered though unappalled by the truth forced upon us that of all human government a free government is the most complex and difficult and judging from the world's experience the most uncertain and shortlived.' I beg to assure the gentleman of West Virginia that the government of the United States, resting as it does upon the will of a free people, is safe [illegible] quite as secure as the governments that are conducted by the titled few, and that a free people like ours, capable of governing themselves and having so demonstrated for more than one hundred years, will be alert enough to see to it that no industrial policy shall long continue in this country that will lower the conditions of its people to the level of their European rivals and rob them of their dignity and independence.'

"Now what has been garbed or twisted? I find in the New York World, a Democratic paper which would not willingly do Mr. Wilson any injustice, under date of Sept. 28, a report of Mr. Wilson's speech at the London banquet and in that speech as published in The World I find these words: 'Our protectionists have been building defences to keep you and other nations from competing with us in our home market. The tariff reformers are breaking down these defences.'

"That is the exact language I quoted and if The World is correct in its report, then I have done no injustice to Mr. Wilson and have not garbled his speech, for it will be observed that here are two independent sentences in neither of which have I omitted or changed a word. The other quotation from Mr. Wilson's speech which I used I found in the New York World as follows: 'We are being rapidly sobered though unappalled by the truth forced upon us that of all human governments a free government is the most complex and difficult and judging from the world's experience the most uncertain and short-lived.'

"That sentence is complete and no word was omitted or changed in the quotation I made. Mr. Wilson does not say in what particular I have garbled his speech; he does not say what I have omitted. He does not deny so far as I have been able to discover that he uttered the words I have quoted.

"The language of Mr. Wilson in his speech touching the tariff as reported in the New York World is in exact accord with the purposes and policies of that branch of the Democratic party of which he is the leader and for which he assumes to speak.

"But I am not so much interested in what he said in London as in what he has already done and proposes to do in the United States. Nothing in his speech from which I quoted and relating to the tariff in any sense differs from what he has said here and is strictly in line with what his party have done since they have had the power. Mr. Wilson will have quite as much to do in defending his bill before his constituents as in explaining his London speech. Both are of a kind and both are unpatriotic.

A Third Ticket in New York

Brooklyn, Oct. 9.—By a vote of 47 to 7 last night the anti-machine Democrats decided in favor of a third State ticket. The meeting was called to order by Edward M. Shepard. Thomas G. Shearman was elected chairman and he offered the following resolution: "Resolved, that the delegation declare in favor of the immediate nomination of a third State ticket and that a committee be appointed by the chair who are hereby authorized, in consultation with Democrats from other parts of the State, to put such a ticket in nomination."

The resolution was adopted after nearly two hours' debate. The committee, when appointed, will be instructed to confer with other delegates from the State, who meet here to-day.

DEATH CAME IN PEACE.

Oliver Wendell Holmes in His Last Moments

Boston, Oct. 8.—Death came to Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes in a chamber overlooking the Charles river and immortalized in the famous poem "My Aviary." The members of the family thought that the end might come in a few months, that the old "Autocrat" would not survive the chilling winds of another New England winter, but they were unprepared for his death yesterday. Seated in his chair unconsciousness came to him and in a short half hour his spirit had flown. There was no time to put him into bed, and before the physician who had been summoned could arrive, Dr. Holmes was dead. There was no last wishes, the "Last Word" was never spoken, for the end came unheralded and sudden.

Dr. Holmes and his distinguished son, Judge Holmes, were in the midst of a conversation in the poet's chamber yesterday afternoon just preceding the former's death, and to neither, certainly not to the jurist, was there any evidence that the end was so near. The conversation was such as was held between the two men daily.

The dying poet, for he was even then, it seems, passing away, was sitting in a chair with his head bowed on the arm of another chair and it was thought he would be more comfortable if he could be moved into his favorite arm chair, an old-fashioned piece of furniture with a winged back. Accordingly his son supported Dr. Holmes to the big chair and as he sank into it he leaned his head on one of the side-rests and said: "That is better, thank you." This simple domestic phrase was the final utterance of Dr. Holmes.

His son and Mrs. Dixwell, who were in the room, soon noticed that the Doctor's breathing became irregular and called the family together. His passing away was an ideal one. There was no pain. It was as peaceful as was his life. Judge Holmes summoned his wife, and the inanimate form of the "Autocrat" was removed to a couch.

Such is the simple story of the last hour of a life that was simplicity itself.

Dr. Holmes was down town as late as last Thursday, at the Parker house, making arrangements for the meeting of the Saturday club, and despite his great age and his bronchial affection he was in good spirits. During the summer, except for his asthmatic troubles, Dr. Holmes had been in remarkably good health.

The arrangements for the funeral are being made under the supervision of Dr. John Dixwell.

The services are to take place in Kings Chapel at noon Wednesday and Rev. Edward Everett Hale, D. D., will officiate.

Burial will be in the family lot at Mt. Auburn. The services are to be of a semi-public nature, it is understood, although the details have not been perfected. Cousins of Dr. Holmes will be the pallbearers.

Equal Suffrage and Equal Trousers.

Topeka, Oct. 8.—Laura M. Johns, president of the Kansas Equal Suffrage association, in a letter just made public declares that the suffrage association is in no way responsible for the dress reform movement recently started in Topeka. She says: "We have in our creed only one article, and that one article is a pledge to work for woman's enfranchisement. Individual members of our association do believe in and work for a reform in woman's dress, but all that is an aside, and is outside of our legitimate business as suffragists. Suffrage associations have nothing to do with any such departure. The talk about a fictitious "voting costume" for the new constituents in Kansas is confined to the newspapers and furnishes "the boys" with a target for their wit. A "voting costume" is nonsense and we've none of it. We have always worn skirts to the polls and we are likely to continue that costume. We hereby hasten to assure our Kansas brothers that their monopoly of the stiff and ugly style in which they clothe themselves does not challenge our admiration nor ambition, and is not likely to be infringed upon by women voters. We very much prefer our own pretty, graceful and feminine draperies and adornments, and we see no inconsistency in their continued use after Nov. 6. They will be no more incongruous at the polls than they are in the postoffice, and will not hamper us nearly as much when we go to vote as they do when we sweep and dust, wash and cook."

More Trouble in South Carolina

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 9.—Telegrams from Constable Workman to Governor Tillman indicate that they had a somewhat lively time near Greenville yesterday. During the morning Governor Tillman received a telegram from the constable that he had stopped and seized a trunk which contained some export beer. The trunk, he stated, came from the residence of Mr. H. C. Marks, and believing that there was other liquor in the house of Mr. Marks, Constable Workman had sworn out a search warrant before the local trial justice and given it to the sheriff to execute. Constable Workman telegraphed that the sheriff had declined to make the search. Upon this information Governor Tillman telegraphed to the sheriff that he should make the search and that if he did not that he would report the case to the legislature and have him removed from office.

The Fall River Strike.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 9.—The eighth week of the strike is on. The city is still orderly and the charity of all who can give is being tested freely. Letter carriers have contributed a considerable sum for bread to the poor, and the United Friends Social club gave away [illegible] this afternoon [illegible]. The free soup distributions are going on and more than 2000 people are being fed daily in this way. Last night Secretary Ross of New Bedford, and Howard of this city, left for New York to meet Samuel Gompers and arrange for regular support for the members of the National Mule Spinners association. The weavers' executive committee will meet to-day to arrange for the distribution of $1,000 among 3000 members.

This morning several manufacturers met at the association rooms and talked over the situation at some length. It is not definitely stated that any agreement was arrived at but it was given out by one manufacturer that something of importance would soon happen and from this statement it is inferred that the manufacturers are about to make some sort of an offer to the spinners.

Morgan, who was next in rank to General Hawkins in the subsistence department of the army, and the first men in each of the lower grades has moved up one step.

REVENGE IS SWEET.

An Instance In Which Democracy Got Even With Aristocracy.

An amusing incident that occurred on Delmar boulevard not long ago serves to illustrate how, in the young at least, the desire to get even manifests itself.

Seated in the gutter in front of one of the handsome dwellings on that thoroughfare was a typical street gamin. He was hatless and shoeless, and such garments as he did wear were ragged and dirty. Constant contact with the soil of the streets had made his complexion of a sameness with the pavement, so far as color and other outward appearances went. Presently, from out the mansion, in front of which he was playing, there came a boy of about his own age. But in all respects he was different. With carefully combed curly locks, a Fauntleroy suit, black silk stockings and patent leathers, it was seen at once that he was the pet of wealthy and indulgent parents. He was proud and haughty, having been, no doubt, unconsciously taught to be so by a loving father and a doting mother.

After an inspection of the youngster playing in the dirt, the little lord remarked:

"Hello, dirty face."

Receiving no answer he repeated the remark in a louder tone, and the ragged urchin, noticing the other apparently for the first time, slowly rose to his feet and surveyed him. Then, without saying a word, he approached, and swinging around gave little Lord Fauntleroy a slap that brought tears to his eyes and knocked him down on the sidewalk. The gamin quickly rubbed his dirty hands over the other one's face, mussed his hair, tore his lace collar and left him with a tear stained countenance that was anything but immaculate. Silent up to this time, the gutter snipe now remarked:

"Now you're dirty faced yourself, durn you."—St. Louis Republic.

Minnie Hauk and Ravelli.

Minnie Hauk annoyed Ravelli very much while playing Carmen to his Don Jose. For some reason she suddenly embraced him in the middle of a high note. He was so furious that he tried to throw her into the orchestra. She held tightly to him to save herself, [illegible] until her grip wrenched all the buttons off his red waistcoat. Ravelli rushed to the footlights and shouted, "Look, she has torn my waistcoat!" The audience thought it was all acting, and responded with thunders of applause. After this scene Minnie Hauk's husband stood at the wings every night armed with a revolver, ready to blow out Don Jose's brains if he dared to touch Carmen, while Ravelli threatened her with a large knife if she attempted to approach him. As Jose is supposed to be madly in love with the girl, it looked very absurd to see them dodging away from each other all around the stage.—San Francisco Argonaut.

THE TRANSLATION OF A SAVAGE

BY GILBERT PARKER

ho was grateful, tremulous, proud. had he, Captain Vidall, kept out he way all these weeks just when needed him most, just when he ld have played the part of a man? she was feeling twinges at the t too. She had seen Lady Agnes tling that afternoon and had no- l how the news had worn on her. felt how much better it had been had k come quietly home and married instead of doing the wild, scan- us thing that was making so many tburnings. A few minutes ago she longed for a chance to say some- g delicately acid to Lady Haldwell, Julia Sherwood, who was there. there was a chance to give her r spirit tongue. She was glad, she d not think how glad, to hear that o again, but she was angry, too, and hould suffer for it, the more so be- e she recognized in the tone and rward in his face that he was still orbingly interested in her. There a little burst of thanksgiving in heart, and then she prepared a very able commination service in her d.

his meeting had been deftly ar- ged by Mrs. Townley, with the help Edward Lambert, who now held her ers with a kind of vanity of posses- whenever he bade her goodby or her. Captain Vidall had, in fact, out of the country, had only been a week and had only heard of k Armour's mesalliance from Lam- at an "at home" 48 hours before. Townley guessed what was really he bottom of Marion's occasional erness, and piecing together many e things dropped casually by her nd had come to the conclusion that happiness of two people was at stake. When Marion shook hands with Cap- Vidall, she had herself exceedingly l under control. She looked at him light surprise and casually remark- hat they had not chanced to meet ly in the run of small and earlies. appeared to be unconscious that he been out of the country, and also she had been till very recently in- l at Greyhope. He hastened to as- her that he had been away and to siege to this unexpected barrier.

He knew all about Frank's affair, and gh it troubled him he did not see it should make any difference in regard for Frank's sister. Fastidious he was in all things, he was fas- ously deferential. Not an exquisite, had all that vanity as to appear- e so usual with the military n. Himself of the most perfect tem- and sweetness of manner and con- t, the unusual disturbed him. Not sessed of a vivid imagination, he ld scarcely conjure up this Indian le at Greyhope.

But face to face with Marion Armour saw what troubled her, and he de- mined that he would not meet her ny with irony, her assumed indiffer- e with indifference. He had learned of the most important lessons of life ever to quarrel with a woman. oever has so far erred has been fool- indeed. It is the worst of policy, to nothing of its being the worst of and life should never be without

It is absurd to be perfectly natural. thing, anybody, can be that. Well, tain Hume Vidall was something of artist, more, however, in principle n by temperament. He refused to ognize the rather malicious adroit- s with which Marion turned his re- rks again upon himself, twisted out ll semblance. He was very patient. inquired quietly, and as if honestly erested, about Frank and said be- so he thought it safest as well as st reasonable that naturally they st have been surprised at his marry- a native, but he himself had seen ne such marriages turn out very well Japan, India, the South Sea islands l Canada. He assumed that Marion's er-in-law was beautiful and then armed Marion by saying that he ught of going down to Greyhope im- diately to call on General Armour l Mrs. Armour and wondered if she s going back before the end of the son.

Quick as Marion was, this was said quietly that she did not quite see the ft of it. She had intended staying in ndon to the end of the season, not be- use she enjoyed it, but because she s determined to face Frank's mar- go at every quarter and have it over, e for all, so far as herself was con- ned. But now, taken slightly aback, said, almost without thinking, that would probably go back soon. She s not quite sure but certainly her her and mother would be glad to see ptain Vidall at any time.

Then, without any apparent relevan- he asked her if Mrs. Frank Armour ll wore her Indian costume. In any o else the question had seemed imper- ent. In him it had a touch of confi- nce, of the privilege of close friendship. Then he said, with a meditative look and a very calm retrospective voice, that he was once very much in love with a native girl in India and might have become permanently devoted to her were it not for the accident of his being ordered back to England summarily.

This was a piece of news which cut two ways.—In the first place, it lessened the extraordinary character of Frank's marriage, and it roused in her an immediate curiosity, which a woman always feels in the past "affairs" of her lover, or possible lover. Vidall did not take pains to impress her with the fact that the matter occurred when he was almost a boy, and it was when her earnest inquisition had drawn from him, bit by bit, the circumstances of the case, and she had forgotten many parts of her commination service and to preserve an effective neutrality in tone, that she became aware he was speaking ancient history. Then it was too late to draw back.

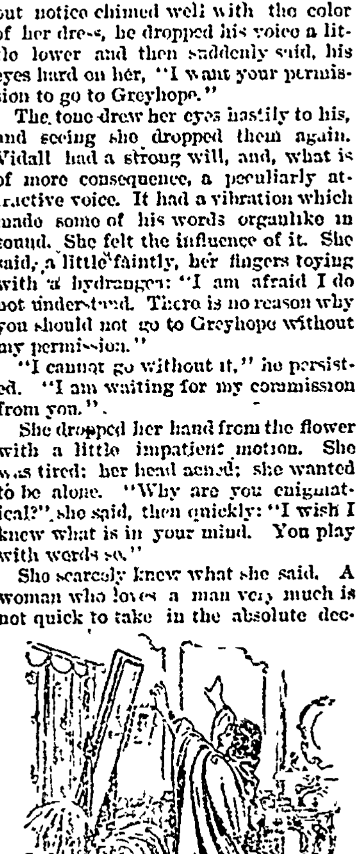
They had threaded their way through the crowd into the conservatory, where they were quite alone, and there, with only a little pyramid of hydrangeas between them, which she could not help but notice chimed well with the color of her dress, he dropped his voice a little lower and then suddenly said, his eyes hard on her, "I want your permission to go to Greyhope."

The tone drew her eyes hastily to his, and seeing she dropped them again. Vidall had a strong will, and, what is of more consequence, a peculiarly attractive voice. It had a vibration which made some of his words organlike in sound. She felt the influence of it. She said, a little faintly, her fingers toying with a hydrangea: "I am afraid I do not understand. There is no reason why you should not go to Greyhope without my permission."

"I cannot go without it," he persisted. "I am waiting for my commission from you."

She dropped her hand from the flower with a little impatient motion. She was tired; her head ached; she wanted to be alone. "Why are you enigmatical?" she said, then quickly: "I wish I knew what is in your mind. You play with words so."

She scarcely knew what she said. A woman who loves a man very much is not quick to take in the absolute declaration of that man's love on the instant. It is too wonderful for her. He felt his cheek flush with hers; he drew her look again to him. "Marion, Marion!" he said. That was all.



She looked at herself again.

"Oh, hush! Some one is coming," was her quick, throbbing reply. When they parted a half hour later, he said to her, "Will you give me my commission to go to Greyhope?"

"Oh, no, I cannot," she said very gravely, "but come to Greyhope when I go back."

"And when will that be?" he said, smiling, yet a little ruefully too.

"Oh, ask Mrs. Townley," she replied. "She is coming also."

Marion knew what that commission to go to Greyhope meant. But she determined that he should see Lali first before anything irrevocable was done. She still looked upon Frank's marriage as a scandal. Well, Captain Vidall should face it in all its crudeness. So in a week or less Marion and Mrs. Townley were in Greyhope.

Two months had gone since Lali arrived in England, and yet no letter had come to her or to any of them from Frank. Frank's solicitor in London had written him fully of her arrival, and he had had a reply, with further instructions regarding money to be placed to General Armour's credit for the benefit of his wife. Lali, as she became Europeanized, also awoke to the forms and ceremonies of her new life. She had overheard Frank's father and mother wondering, and fretting as they wondered, why they had not received any word from him. General Armour had even called him a scoundrel, which sent Frank's mother into tears. Then Lali had questioned Mackenzie and Colvan, for she had increasing shrewdness, and she began to feel her actual position. She resented General Armour's imputation, but in her heart she began to pine and wonder. At times, too, she was fitful and was not to be drawn out. But she went on improving in personal appearance and in correctly speaking the English language. Mrs. Townley's appearance marked a change in her. When they met, she would only stand still and trembled. When Mrs. Townley came to her and took her hand and kissed her, she shivered and then caught her about the shoulders lightly, but was silent. After a little she said, "Come, come to my wigwam and talk with me."

She said it with a strange little smile, for now she recognized that the word wigwam was not to be used in her new life. But Mrs. Townley whispered, "Ask Marion to come too."

Lali hesitated and then said a little maliciously, "Marion, will you come to my wigwam?"

Marion ran to her, caught her about the waist and replied gayly: "Yes, we will have a powwow. Is that right—is powwow right?"

The Indian girl shook her head with a pretty vagueness and vanished with them. General Armour walked up and down the room briskly, then turned on his wife and said: "Wife, it was a brutal thing. Frank doesn't deserve to be the father of her child."

But Lali had moods—singular moods. She indulged in one three days after the arrival of Marion and Mrs. Townley. She had learned to ride with the side-saddle and wore her riding dress admirably. Nowhere did she show to better advantage. She had taken to riding now with General Armour on the country roads. On this day Captain Vidall was expected, he having written to ask that he might come. What trouble Lali had with one of the servants that morning was never thoroughly explained, but certain it is she came to have a crude notion of why Frank Armour married her. The servant was dismissed duly, but that was after the contretemps.

It was late afternoon. Everybody had been busy, because one or two other guests were expected besides Captain Vidall. Lali had kept to herself, sending word through Richard that she would not "be English," as she vaguely put it, that day. She had sent Mackenzie on some mission. She sat on the floor of her room as she used to sit on the ground in her father's lodge. Her head was bowed in her hands, and her arms rested on her knees. Her body swayed to and fro. Presently all motion ceased. She became perfectly still. She looked before her, as if studying something.

Her eyes immediately flashed. She rose quickly to her feet, went to her wardrobe and took out her Indian costume and blanket, with which she could never be induced to part. Almost feverishly she took off the clothes she wore and hastily threw them from her; then she put on the buckskin clothes in which she had journeyed to England, drew down her hair as she used to wear it, fastened round her waist a long red sash which had been given her by a governor of the Hudson's Bay company when he had visited her father's country, threw her blanket round her shoulders and then eyed herself in the great mirror in the room. What she saw evidently did not please her perfectly, for she stretched out her hands and looked at them. She shook her head at herself and put her hand to her cheeks and pinched them—they were not so brown as they once were—then thrust out her foot. She drew it back quickly in disdain.

Immediately she caught the fashionable slippers from her feet and threw them among the discarded garments. She looked at herself again. Still she was not satisfied, but she threw up her arms, as with a sense of pleasure and freedom, and laughed at herself. She pushed out her moccasined foot, tapped the floor with it, nodded toward it and said a word or two in her own language. She heard some one in the next room, possibly Mackenzie. She stepped to the door leading into the hall, opened it, went out, traveled its length, ran down a back hallway out into the park toward the stables, her blanket, as her hair, flying behind her.

THE NEW GOLD CAMP.

La Belle, N. M.

The recent gold find in the Costilla district, New Mexico, from present indications, is among the most valuable discoveries of recent years. An area of about 10 square miles has been thoroughly prospected, and everywhere is evidence of a practically inexhaustible supply of gold-bearing ore of medium grade, running from $10 to $70 a ton. This ore is free milling and so soft that the cost of reduction is very low.

The new camp has been named La Belle. It is about 45 miles southwest of Catskill, on the Union Pacific, Denver and Gulf road, south from Pueblo, having a daily stage connection with Catskill. The present population of the camp is about 700, with daily arrivals numbering 75 to 100, many of whom are locating there permanently. The little camp presents all the bustling activity of Creede and Cripple Creek in their halcyon days—residences and business houses are going up rapidly, and on every hand is promise of a brilliant future for La Belle.

A committeee of mining experts who have only just returned from La Belle make the most encouraging reports, which more than justify the claims made as to the great richness of the new fields and hold out great promise for their future. What that future may be is of course beyond conjecture, but from the most conservative standpoint, it is certain to prove a valuable addition to the gold output of the West.

You want to visit the new gold camp, La Belle, N. M. Buy a ticket to Catskill via the U. P. D. & G. Stages daily from Catskill to La Belle. Stage fare, $3 one way; $5 round trip.

The U. P. D & G. is the only line for the new gold camp, La Belle.

If you want to see a real, live, new mining camp, visit La Belle.

A GREAT RAILROAD.

By the absorption of the Chicago and Atlantic railway between Marion and Chicago, the Erie has at last effected its entrance into Chicago, and now occupies the proud distinction of being the only line between Chicago and New York entirely under one management.

One result of this is the arrangement whereby all the through trains of the Erie are now run solid between Chicago and New York without change. Passengers holding through tickets, whether first or second class, are able to go from Chicago to New York without changing cars.

Pullman's most modern sleeping cars are run on all through trains via this line, and on their Vestibule Limited, Pullman dining cars. No extra fare charged on this train. In fact, the rates via the Erie are lower than via any other route offering equal facilities.

THE SITUATION IN NEW YORK.

The political atmosphere in New York city has been clearing up. All the anti-Tammany elements except the so-called State Democracy have agreed on a ticket which has the name of Wm. L. Strong for Mayor, and that of John W. Goff for Recorder. These organizations include the Republicans, the Good Government clubs, and two bodies of dissatisfied local Democrats. The Press estimates their total vote at 173,000, against about 150,000 to be polled by Tammany and the State Democracy. This estimate may be too high, but at least there is a chance of beating Tammany, and a better one than there has been for a good many years back.

It is said, with every appearance of truth, that Senator Hill, before he accepted the nomination for Governor, made a deal with Mr. Grace, whereby, in return for the State Democracy's support of the State ticket Mr. Grace was to name the Democratic Mayor. If this arrangement was made, as it seems to have been, it will be a very bitter pill for Tammany to swallow. The municipality of New York has been the Tammany spoilsmen's feeding ground for many years, and they are more accustomed to trade away their votes for national offices in return for [illegible] to trade votes for Mayor in return for votes for Governor. But Hill was inexorable. He [illegible] that he would certainly be beaten unless he [illegible] the Democratic [illegible], and [illegible] would not [illegible] Governor unless Tammany would give up the Mayoralty.

Such a bargain as this, [illegible] thing in Tammany politics, may not be easy to carry out. The Tammany men are indeed accustomed to be voted in droves, according to the will of their leaders, but the leaders themselves are not satisfied with the arrangement which will put a good many of them out of a job for the season, and perhaps for years, and we doubt whether the whole of the pledged goods can be delivered. Whether Mr. Grace can carry out his part of the compact we cannot tell, but the probabilities are that he will find it very difficult. The indications are certainly in favor of the success of the ticket headed by Strong and Goff.

THE MARKETS OF THE WORLD.

It is a favorite assertion of the advocates of "tariff reform" that an advance toward free trade will open to this nation the markets of the world; and this has been the burden of Mr. W. L. Wilson's speeches in defense of that tariff bill which he introduced and which was mangled beyond identification in the Senate.

As a matter of fact the repeal of the reciprocity section of the McKinley bill has already lost to us most of the markets of the [illegible] and will soon lose the rest. Brazil is about to impose retaliatory duties on American products. Spain will no longer give to our merchants advantages for the introduction of American goods into Cuba. Germany and France, where an immense market for our food products had been secured, after many years of effort, are about to impose higher duties and perhaps to exclude our food products altogether.

The effect of this move in the direction of free trade, then, so far from being an advantage to our producers in opening new markets, has been to close those that were already open. Its effect on the American market has been to open it to foreigners. Our own producers are thus cut both ways. The lesson is a costly one, but the American people wanted it, and now they have got to pay for it. But that will not matter so much if the lesson is thoroughly learned.

We do not know yet what the total vote was in the Georgia election; but enough is known to show that it was probably as large as usual, if not larger, and that the falling off in the Democratic majority was not due simply to indifference on the part of the voters. Mr. Atkinson, the Democratic candidate for Governor, seems to have only about ten thousand majority, against the usual 80,000 to 100,000. Several of the Congressional districts show a clear Populist majority, and the Democrats will have to work hard for the next three weeks if they expect to hold these districts in November. Our own sympathies in the contest are entirely with the Democrats, and we hope they will hold their Congressional districts, for such men as Tom Watson are a nuisance in the House, and some of the Democratic Representatives from Georgia are men of ability and patriotism.

The Supreme Court of the State of South Carolina has decided that the Dispensary law is constitutional, and trouble has begun again in the Palmetto State. A case will be made up very soon to be carried to the Supreme Court of the United States. The legal questions and the constitutional questions involved are nice ones, and there should be a decision of them by the court of last resort. In the meantime, the searching of private houses on suspicion will go on, and will lead to something like a small civil war in the State.

The Massachusetts Democrats have put up a State ticket to be knocked down by the voters on Nov. 6. Their candidate for Governor is the same as last year ex-Congressman John E. Russell, who is by no means to be confounded with W. E. Russell, who has twice been elected Governor. John is in no danger of election, and he knows it. The Massachusetts Democrats, like their brethren in Colorado, are making the motions of a contest this year simply in order to keep up an organization.

Several of the new till-after-election-only newspapers, or imitations of newspapers, have been started recently in this neighborhood. Victor has a new Populist sheet, which was presumably started to print the constitutional amendments; there is another of the same kind in Pueblo, and here in this city we have a temporary Democratic sheet which consists mainly of editorials, and is a decent enough paper of its kind. But what is the use of starting a paper to run five weeks?

Waite was on his good behavior Monday night. He never swore once, and tried to coo as gently as any sucking dove. In fact, he was as different as possible from the bloodthirsty warrior who ordered Tarsney to train his big guns on the deputy sheriffs and mow them down if they attempted to carry out the orders of the court. But the people of this county know Waite too well to be deceived by his present peaceful attitude.

Here is a sample from the Montrose Industrial Union of the paragraphs that are going the rounds of the Populist papers.

"Who made the miners and the mine-owners arbitrate at Cripple Creek and thus ended the strike and saved loss of life and blood? Governor Waite."

That sort of thing may go in places where they don't know anything about the Cripple Creek strike, but it [illegible]

The tests of the [illegible] Krag-Jorgensen [illegible] In practical [illegible] the absence of [illegible] is a very great improvement over the old Springfield.

One half of our Populist exchanges are claiming that it is not true that the Populist administration keeps out capital, and the other half are equally loud in the assertion that it does prevent capital from coming in, and that this is one of its merits. No wonder that Populist orators insist that their hearers should be careful about reading newspapers.

The Secretary of State of Nebraska has recognized the Populist State ticket as the Democratic ticket, and the names of the nominees will appear on both tickets. The bolting "regulars" receive no recognition whatever, and will try in the courts to establish their right to have their nominees printed on the official ballot.

Afraid of the Business Men.

When the bankers, merchants and money lenders of Denver get together and convert themselves into a machine for the benefit of the Republican party, they proclaim themselves the allies of Wall street, and the malignant enemies of the toiling and producing people of Colorado out of whose hard earnings these "business men" have amassed the riches they possess. By their conduct they are now assuming to dictate to the voters of this State in what manner they shall cast their ballots. They have taken up and re-echoed the lie originated by the Denver Republican papers, that the Populist administration is keeping money out of the State and bringing disaster upon it. Most of these evil designers, masquerading as "business men," are old time pilfering Republicans who want another opportunity to rob the State and prey upon its over-burdened and depressed people. They are dishonest in purpose and act, and merit the widest exposure. (Rico News, (Pop.)

An Authority on Irrigation.

While water referee Judge A. W. McIntire rendered a decision in the most gigantic problem of the kind ever presented to a man in the United States. The type written testimony covered hundreds of pages. The wonderful accuracy of his decisions have been the cause of much commendation by the smartest minds in Colorado. Out of a chaotic mass that seemed impenetrable was wrought harmony and state of ruling that no court on earth will change to any great extent. The referee acted upon the testimony in hand and if some few water users failed from any cause to establish their claims by evidence and did not get their dues the referee can in no wise be held responsible. Upon the subject of irrigation no man in the State has had wider experience or applied more study, and upon the question in its entirety he is acknowledged to be the best authority in the State to-day. Not Important Questions.

When Governor Waite spoke at Montrose a short time ago a leading Pop of that city requested the Governor to answer the following list of questions, and to ventilate and explain the charges expressed therein:

THE QUESTIONS.

1. That in the matter of the State prison, you did resort to unlawful means to install S. J. Toy as warden: that said means were not only unlawful, but vicious, puerile and contemptible, bringing yourself and the Populist party into disgrace and opprobrium.

2. That the calling of the special session of the legislature against the known wishes of a large majority of the voters was an outrage: "for the people should rule," and that the scheme which you proposed to coin silver and make it a legal tender by State law, was in violation of the United States Constitution, and is another expression of the long-exploded "States Rights" doctrine.

3. That in the matter of the Cripple Creek riot, you did openly express sympathy with the rioters, and you are currently suspicioned of having aided and abetted those rioters, having counciled them to arm themselves, and further that you did use the State militia not to support the legal authority of El Paso county, but to contravene the law, and defy the sheriff of the county.

If you are not guilty of these charges, please explain why you offered a $1,000 reward for Tarsney's outragers, but when the Bull hill rioters murdered two law-abiding citizens, laborers at that, and drove another to an insane asylum, you have not found it expedient to offer a reward for the murderers, but you have constituted yourself a friend and protector of those criminals, and have made the position of Governor the patron and defender of crime to the peril of the lives and property of the citizens of the State of Colorado.

The Governor's answer was:

"I have written my speech, and don't care to deviate, and I don't consider those questions important." (The Ouray Herald

VISITED HIS PETS.

vernor Waite Made a Call at the County Jail.

Governor Waite after telling his ubles to the public at the opera house nday night, did not go away as was ported. He got into a carriage and s driven rapidly in the direction of the Grande depot and the reporters who tched him depart jumped at the consion that he had flown. It seems that was driven to the other side of the n, where he was the guest of Dr. and s. Sinton for the night.

he reason for this circuitous driving not given, unless it was that he wanted elude the terrible gang of men who and feather all State officials who ne here. It is intimated that the Govor was terribly disappointed that he s not in some way mistreated while e. He had no hopes of getting any es here, but did hope that something uld occur that could be turned to good ount among ignorant people who could made to believe that there is animosity inst the old gentleman here in "Little ndon."

he only thing in the way of a disturbe was after the speaking. One of the e thing bad men who goes with the vernor to protect him jumped on the ge from the front and stepped on the tlights. Stage-Manager Abernathy hed him back and the bad man began reach for his gun. Mr. Nye and others pped up and stopped the trouble.

he Governor was up bright and early sterday morning and about 9 o'clock s at the county jail to visit his pets. ere is still a fine lot of them there l he put in about half an hour among m. Uncle John Beall was with the old ntleman all the time he was there, and ld only offer words of consolation. talked with Jerry Dunn, Dynamite orty, Hugh O'Connell and all the rest them, and promised to do what he can get them bail. It seems that they it for him to come and see them and if sible have his "last guess." He has t yet had it. The Governor left about 30 for Rocky Ford, where he spoke t night.

here was much comment on the Govor's address yesterday, and it was erally agreed that the Governor makes good speech and has some very plausible planations of his conduct, but that he gets to fill in the details that bring t the truth. It was generally remarked it the speech was entirely made up of cuses and justifications of himself. ere was not a suggestion of any kind de as to the future policy if elected or cussion of national politics. The uncalled for attack on the poor little struggling Coliseum project by a stranger was much commented upon and very favorably. The injustice of it can be comprehended when it is taken into consideration that the opera house is owned by the chairman of the State Republican committee and other Republicans, and that if there had been any desire to keep the Populists from having a house they could have been kept out of that place as well.

AN APPEAL.

The Y. M. C. A. Needs Some Assistance Right Away.

The supporters of the Y. M. C. A. feel constrained to make an especial appeal for help to the people of the city. They do so, not because there is any lack of interest in its work, or because there is any fear of failure to secure its usual income. But, at the present time, peculiar circumstances make ready money pressingly necessary. By the advice of several well-known business men, and on account of the unrest incident upon the troubles at Cripple Creek, the usual spring canvass was postponed. During the summer the city was appealed to for the support of the Summer school, the Casino, and the Coliseum. Notwithstanding these other demands, the opening of the canvass has been generously received by the people of the city, and already about one-third of the money necessary for meeting the year's expenses has been pledged. But, thus far almost no ready money has been secured. Such being the case, it can be seen that the association could not meet its rent, salary, and other bills during the summer. For the last few months it was falling steadily behind. Two weeks ago, the rent for the room being three months overdue, the association was threatened with eviction by legal process unless the money was forthcoming. To prevent the entire stoppage of the work by the loss of its rooms at the very opening of all its winter activities, two of the directors borrowed, on their personal note, the money to pay the rent. This note must be met within a week, and there are other bills amounting to nearly $200 which, as a matter of justice, ought to be paid at once. The association needs at least $400 to meet its present embarrassments.

The directors cannot give this money. They have already subscribed all they feel they can. They are administering the association for the people of the city, and they believe that the people, when informed of this pressing need will come to the help of the work. The directors therefore urgently appeal to all who feel interest in the association and who believe that it is a necessity for our own young men and boys and for the strangers who are continually coming to the city, to rally at once to its support. This is the time when it is difficult to secure large subscriptions. What is asked for now is a contribution, large or small from every friend of the association, 50 cents, $1, $2, $5, $10, any amount. Money may be handed to Mr. E. B. Simmons, 106 North Tejon street, or to Secretary Lloyd at the Y. M. C. A. rooms. The Gazette has kindly consented to open a subscription list at its rooms.

HE KNOWS WOOL.

The Attorney General Says It Is the Hair of Sheep Only.

Washington, Oct. 9. Secretary Carlisle issued this telegram at his residence at 4.30 o'clock this evening: "Washington, D. C., Oct. 9, 1894.—To the Collector of Customs at New York: The attorney general has rendered an opinion that the word 'wool' as used in paragraph 297 of the new tariff act refers to hair of sheep only, and that the new duties under schedule K, upon articles made of the hair of other animals went immediately into effect from the date the act took effect. Custom officers will be governed accordingly. Instructions of August 27 remain unchanged. Collectors will reliquidate all entries covering goods classified contrary to above instructions. J. C. Carlisle, Secretary."

A Heated Argument.

Geneva, Neb., Oct. 9.—W. T. Harris, bookkeeper for Younger & Co. of this city, shot and seriously wounded Dr. G. W. Corman this afternoon as they met near the former's office. The shooting was the result of a heated argument during which both handled firearms promiscuously. Harris was arrested, but later released on his own recognizance. The trouble is said to have been caused by jealousy on the part of Harris. All of the parties concerned stand high in social circles here.

U. S. Army Target Practice.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—When the cavalry finished its preliminary skirmish on the Fort Sheridan range to-day it was discovered that the average of the first 10 men for the four days' shooting was 426 against 425.3 made by the infantry. The high skirmish run for the day was made by Sergeant Vrooman, Ninth cavalry, who rolled up a score of 148. To-morrow the competition between the cavalry and infantry commences. The contestants embrace the entire army and are made up from the following departments: Dakota, Platte, California, Columbia, and Colorado.

After to-morrow's competition, Major F. D. Baldwin, inspector of small arm practice of the Department of the Missouri, will consult with the men who have been testing the Krag-Jorgensen rifle. From the facts gleaned from this consultation Major Baldwin will set about revising the manual of arms and tactics so that the handling of the new gun can be taught the enlisted men. Being a magazine gun, the old manual will be wholly eliminated. The new tactics will be ready in the spring, when the new rifle will be issued to the army.

It has been demonstrated that a wind gauge will have to be placed on the new gun.

A Victim of the Fire.

Hinckley, Minn., Oct. 9.—The body of Joseph Parish, before the fire an employee on Greenfield's farm, a few miles north on the St. Paul and Duluth railroad, was found this morning. The last seen of him in life was on the day of the fire hanging onto an ox's tail and running in the direction of a lake. To-day the ox was found lying dead in front of the charred bones of Parish. Another body was found in the mill pond of the Brennan Lumber company, this morning, by a crew cleaning up debris.

A Packed Jury Alleged.

Denver, Oct. Oct. 9.—An affidavit was filed to-day by J. K. Mullen and Chas. D. McPhee, who lost their suit against the Western Beef company, alleging support of their motion for a new trial, that the jury was packed with A. P. A. men by Sheriff Burchinell and Matt Adams, clerk of the District court.

CHICAGO DAY.

The World's Fair City Has Its Peculiar Anniversary.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—The twenty-third anniversary of the great fire, which was the natal day of the new and greater Chicago, was celebrated to-day in many ways, although there was no general cessation of business. It is the intention to have the legislature make Oct. 9 a permanent legal holiday.

The first real celebration of Chicago Day took place at the World's Fair. That event was recalled by the interesting procession of the Columbian Liberty Bell through the streets of the city, accompanied by a band and the plow of peace. The ringing of the monster bell, so familiar to exposition visitors at various points, attracted thousands of citizens. The officers and the men of the First regiment, Illinois National Guard, celebrated their entrance into the magnificent fortress-like armory, which was destroyed last year by fire.

This afternoon there was a glittering parade of the crack regiment, all members turning out. The opening exercises were held in the evening, a military promenade ball, brilliant in its social aspect, ending the festivities. The Marquette club, a social organization of Republicans, gave an elaborate banquet at the Grand Pacific hotel, the chief after-dinner attraction being Senator Allison of Iowa. The Union league converted its quarterly meeting and dinner into a celebration banquet at which Carroll D. Wright, the United States Labor Commissioner, was the principal orator.

An Electric Railway.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—The Lake Shore Electric railroad company was incorporated at Springfield to-day with a capital stock of $10,000,000. The new line will run from Chicago to Milwaukee and will be equipped with the latest and best electrical machinery.

Murdered His Wife.

Marble Rock, Ia., Oct. 9. George Reams murdered his wife this morning in a horribly brutal manner, cutting her throat from ear to ear. He then severed his own windpipe and cannot recover. Domestic infelicity was the cause.

Guilty of Manslaughter.

Pittsburg, Oct. 9.—The jury in the trial of Louis Brown for the murder of John Radewiz brought in a verdict of voluntary manslaughter.

An Irrigation Scheme.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 9.—The El Paso County Commissioners decided to-day to arrange with Colorado for the turning of the San Juan river into the Rio Grande to give this part of the county more water. Forty miles of canal will have to be built.

Professional Football.

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—The second game of football between the New York and Philadelphia professionals was played here to-day and resulted in victory for New York. Score 5 to 2.

Amherst-Wesleyan.

Middletown, Conn., Oct. 9.—Amherst defeated Wesleyan here to-day for the first time in her history by a score of 88 to 0. The game abounded in slugging on Amherst's part for which several were ruled off.

Colorado Springs Exchange.

Colorado Springs, Oct. 9—There was a good deal more life and activity about the brokers in the pit at the first call than on the previous day and nearly as much stock changed hands as for the two calls on Monday. The upward rise in Mollie Gibson suffers no decline but continues getting stronger than ever and is not so very far off the $2 mark: it sold as high as $1.82½ and closed strong at that figure bid with $1.85 asked. Work is also increasing in price, though on a more limited scale, and changed hands at 3¼. Traders in Anaconda have reached the stubborn stage again, the bid and asked prices being wide apart. Gold and Globe and Consolidated are being beared by the simple manipulation of small blocks, but Pharmacist appears genuinely weak. Mr. Henry Russell Wray officiated as caller and filled a somewhat "rattling" position like an old hand.

There was again considerable activity at the second call with Mollie Gibson inquired after but not with quite so much vigor as in the morning, though the asked price was higher. Just half the stocks in the entire list were traded in and of these Alamo, Work and Argentum J. were all strong. Traders in Anaconda jumped the big breach in price which has been existing for the past few days and got together at 21½ to the size of a 1000 shares. The total sales for the day were 16175 or nearly double that of the previous one.

The separate sales for the first call were: Mollie Gibson, 100 at $1.81½, 425 at $1.80, 100 at $1.80, and 500 and 200 at $1.82½. Work, 5000 at 3¼; Consolidated, 100 at 1¼; Isabella, 1000 at 11½, Pharmacist, 1000 and 1000 at 5¼. At the second call they were: Mollie Gibson, 100 at $1.82½ and 100 and 500 at $1.85; Argentum J., 100 and 150 at 76; Alamo, 1000 at 3¼; Fanny Rawlings, 2000 at 8¼; Pharmacist, 100 at 5¾; Franklin, 1000 at ¾.

Curb Sales.

Trading on the curb was not so active yesterday as upon the previous day but there was considerable inquiry for Monarch and Orphan Bell, both of which were very hard to get at anything like reasonable figures and are being bought in by the right people. One sale not appearing in our list is that of 15,000 Bushwhacker which changed hands at 8.

The Denver Pit.

Special to The Gazette.

Denver, Oct. 9—Business opened to a large gathering of brokers in the pit this morning and consequently the bidding was active and prices were firm. With Mollie Gibson, Argentum J., Golden Eagle (Leadville) and Portland, the quotations were quite strong, but they are all comparatively high-priced stocks, and the trading in them was not heavy. Mt. Rosa, Isabella and Work all show improvement and a good many more sales would be made if the brokers could sell at a lower figure. Below are given the official sales and quotations for the call.

All Colorado Gold.

Special to The Gazette:

Denver, Oct. 9—At the mint to-day 17 deposits of gold were handed in before 11 o'clock and the weight of them made a nice average day. The deposits came from the following localities: Summit, 43 ounces; Park, 8 ounces; Boulder, 10 ounces; San Miguel, 83 ounces; Gilpin, 600 ounces, and "Colorado Unknown" 10 ounces. The last deposit was one of the chief features of the day being exceptionally small one from that quarter. Another was that all the gold came from Colorado.

Current News.

Mollie is still climbing.

It is rumored that a very large block of Mt. Rosa has changed hands within the past few days.

In reprinting part of Messrs. Doubleday & Rope's weekly letter by an error they were made to say that ¼ of the net returns of ore, obtained under the Roudebush lease on the Lee, was to be the company's royalty whereas it should have been 1-3 (one-third) as stated by them.

The estimation in which our Mining exchange is held is readily shown by the way in which a seat is snapped up as soon as it becomes vacant. Yesterday Mr. J. H. Seebergers formerly an exchange member, was sold to Mr. H. V. Wandell of the firm of McNeil & Wandell.

The Hidden Treasure and Whale lodes, properties of the World Mining and Milling Company have been sold at public auction to satisfy an execution and judgment for $381.86 and costs, in favor of Daniel Duffy. Mr. Duffy bought in the property for $1,027.00.

A rich strike has been made in the Minnehaha lode, near the Elkton and belonging to the Monarch company. Particulars are hard to obtain but it has leaked out that it is quite a big thing and assays run from $240 to over $1000 to the ton.

A meeting of the directors of the Union Gold Mining Company will be held next Monday morning at 9.30, to elect a new general manager. Three leases have been declared forfeited, including those held by Blair and Cox. It is claimed the lessees on this company's ground have not complied with the terms of their leases.

The Bartlett Process Gold Reduction and Mining Company have capitalized with 1,000,000 shares of stock, 350,000 at 10 per cent non-cumulative preferred stock and 650,000 common stock. One hundred thousand shares of the preferred stock have been issued at 25 cents and half that amount has been taken up. It is intended to begin building operations about November 1. The officers of the company are: S. R. Bartlett, president; C. L. Tatt, vice president; H. R. Wray, secretary and treasurer; H. W. Bates and Alex Mair, directors.

As there is considerable controversy going on regarding the admittance of strangers and visitors to the Mining exchange outside the rail, many thinking that it is an unadvisable proceeding, the following from the Chicago Tribune may be of interest. It is taken from an article on the markets and after commenting upon the sudden revival of interest, says: One thing that has undoubtedly had a great deal of effect is the opening of the floor of the exchange to the public. Brokers are ready to admit that a great many thousand dollars in commissions have been lost to the members of the exchange by reason of their experiment in relegating the public to the gallery and not allowing them to give orders over the rail. The space behind the rail has been crowded this week and no small part of the business has been handled directly between brokers and customers across the rail.

Room 20, Bank building, you can get an accurate assay for gold, in 20 minutes. Something new and reliable.

Wake Up, Ye Sleepers!

A few days ago we asked one of the largest Cripple Creek mine owners if he could comprehend the great advantage Colorado Springs would reap from the Cripple Creek mines. He said he could not, but he knew of one mine that was adding more wealth to the country than the largest factory could possibly do. Seventy-five per cent. of the mines of Cripple are owned in Colorado Springs: 75 per cent. of the money made there finds its way, in one way or another, to this town; and Cripple Creek is such an immense producer of wealth that a prophet could not tell all the things it will do for Colorado Springs. If we had wholesale houses, Cripple Creek would support them; if we had a direct line of railroad to the camp it would be a big dividend payer.

—Large investors are beginning to appreciate the possibilities of this town: it is now said that a direct line of railroad is being surveyed from Florence to this town. Florence has set out to make a city of itself, and it wants to be directly connected with the best town in the West. Had you not better connect yourself, also, with Colorado Springs?

Keep track for one month of the rich strikes made in Cripple; there will be plenty of strikes, and you will find that every one of them makes some Colorado Springs citizen rich. Colorado Springs is growing because it has solid, rock-bottomed resources; it is not a boom town, and is the one place in the West that has not nearly built up to its resources.

We offer a business property for less than $10,000 that now pays 9 per cent. net. If properly improved it will rent to net twelve per cent. Such a property is an anchor to the windward, is better than a loan, and will constantly grow in value.

We offer a selection of modern residences ranging in price from $2750 to $10,000 that are bargains.

If you want to invest in real estate, want a genuine bargain and want it in the right location, this is the town to invest in, and we want to see you.

Reed Brothers,

WE ARE ON THE GROUND!

Consequently, in the best possible position to furnish the latest information in regard to all Cripple Creek properties, both in mines, stocks and real estate. We believe there are large profits in real estate for present purchasers.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

s Weak and Declining Most of the Day.

icago, Oct 9—Yesterday's closing ness was still perceptible at the ing of the wheat market to-day, al- gh first trading was at fairly steady It was not long, however, be- the crowd was selling as a unit. official report of the Pacific coast was largely in excess of Brad- t's figures of last week, and it was ved that that agency's report would much greater than last Tuesday in ction A "tip" on the Government was heralded to the effect that the would show 500,000 bushels more was counted on. Bradstreet's did do exactly as was prophesied, but an increase of 4,352,000 bushels in world's available supply, which act- a blockade to a full recovery. Liv- ol cables were easy at a decline of Closing ones from the continent higher for Paris and partly lower artly higher for Berlin. Receipts, 118 cars, were larger than expected. The Northwest had 950 cars. Export clearances were 2,83,840 bushels. Withdrawals from store at Chicago were small at 70,000 bushels. The close showed a slight rally on buying against "puts" December wheat opened from 53¾ to 53⅞, declined to 53¼@53¼, advanced to and closed at 53⅝—⅛ under yesterday. Estimated receipts for to-morrow 51 cars.

Corn—The talent was bearish on this grain to-day, and sold liberally, both of "long" and "short" property. Here, as in wheat, there was advance intelligence on the Government report. It was said that the improvement would equal 100,000,000 bushels. Prices were weak and declining most of the day. Cables were firm. Bradstreets reported a decrease of 547,000 bushels in available stocks Receipts 128 cars, were 33 more than expected and 100 are looked for tomorrow. Withdrawals from store were 147,157 bushels, and export clearances 68,591 bushels. There was a moderate recovery on "covering" and buying against privileges shortly before the close. May corn opened from 50⅞ to 50⅝, declined to 50, rallied to 50½, where it closed ⅜@½ under yesterday.

DANGER!

Many of our citizens may not be aware that we have already established in our midst that which will, if permitted, cause us more trouble than a cyclone or a pestilance. It is the Russian Thistle.

It will take possession of every foot of land in El Paso County and make it absolutely worthless, and that in a very short time.

By a unanimous vote of the City Council at its last session the Police Committee were instructed to confer with the County Commissioners and take such measures as they together saw fit.

Therefore, we, the said committee, jointly with the County Commissioners, do hereby appeal to every citizen of Colorado Springs and El Paso County who own property or are in any way interested, to make investigations and destroy by fire every vestage of said weed on or adjacent to their property, and use their influence with their neighbors to do the same.

Samples of the weed can be seen in many of the stores and public buildings in the city.

By order of the committee.

E. S. BUMSTEAD,
Chairman Police Committee.
C. W. LONG,
Chairman County Commissioners.

Stir them up. Who? The voters, to be sure. See that they are registered. It does no good to tell a man or woman that they should register for they probably forget it in five minutes no matter how sincerely they may feel that they should vote. Go with them and see that they are registered.

Mr. Geo. R. Buckman and Mr. H. L. J. Warren left yesterday for a trip to the Pecos valley and will attend the celebration at Roswell on the 15th. They will do some effective newspaper work for the valley while away as they have orders from the leading papers of the country to supply them with accounts of the celebration.

Yesterday morning one of Massey's employes on a milk wagon had a row with Robert Taylor, the man who killed a fellow at Pueblo last summer, while acting as a deputy United States marshal. Both the men will have a trial in the police court to-day. It seems that the milkman the day before had warned another driver of a milk wagon that the Taylors were not good pay. Mrs. Taylor was present and heard it. Yesterday morning Taylor went out and tackled the fellow, claiming that he had insulted his wife, and he responded by hitting him with a milk can. In the row both men were pretty badly used up.

Art Treasures.

The largest collection of reproductions of the masterpieces of Raphael, Murillo, Rembrandt, etc., are on exhibition to-day in The Antlers hotel pavilion. It is indeed a rare treat and we would suggest to those who are interested in the old masters to call and view them. Close at 6 p. m. to-night.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, The All-wise and Infinite Father has seen fit to remove from our midst our loved and highly esteemed fellow pupil, Bertie S. Holbrook, and:

Whereas, The intimate and pleasant relations held with him during his brief school life make it fitting that we, his school mates record our appreciation of him, therefore

Resolved, That his earnest work and quiet, gentlemanly conduct will be held in remembrance, and be a constant inspiration to us;

Resolved, That in his early death we lose a loved, and honored member of our school;

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with his father and mother in this, their sad bereavement;

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the parents and to the press.

Signed by the committee on behalf of the teachers and pupils of the Liller school.

Next Attraction.

The attraction to appear at the opera house is Edwin Milton Royle's comedy-drama "Friends." It will be presented on Saturday evening, Oct. 20 by an excellent company. A San Francisco exchange says: "The California was reopened last night with a strong bill. 'Friends' is as popular as ever. It is a unique play, a trifle exaggerated in sentiment, but very cleverly constructed. The scene between the choleric father and the autocratic son were intensely enjoyed last night, and the powerful bit of acting by E. D. Lyons, as the opium smoker, was enthusiastically applauded. Mrs. Selina Fetter Royle, winning as ever, is still the Marguerite of the cast. Lucius Henderson has become less awkward as Adrian Karje, but is still handicapped by affectation. Milton Royle, the author of the play, makes John Paden, Jr., a most interesting character."

DEFECTIVE EYESIGHT,
In youth or age, should be scientifically fitted with lenses. The rapid loss of eyesight in age can very often be traced to the neglect of the proper care of the eyes in youth, and cheap, poorly-fitted lenses. Errors of eyesight develop most rapidly during school life and should be corrected by accurately-fitted lenses, no matter what the age.
Our optical department is in charge of a specialist, in both the scientific adjustment of lenses and their manufacture, hence a perfect fit of glasses, from $1 upwards.
